Policing even when it does everything right is a tool of violence and social control and should always be understood as a deeply problematic institution and every time we turn over a problem to them we're inviting that violence into our lives.
I think we all would like to live in a world where public safety isn't achieved by people with guns and putting them in cages.

The Monsters Opera

My life would be like a play if life was a musical

To me there is a difference between someone who plays an instrument and someone who is a musician. Usually a person who plays an instrument only play songs that someone else has recorded or played. Maybe they have created some music of their own but usually not. Like many artists musicians are similar in that they are only interested in copy. That is someone who plays an instrument. Some who I would call a musician creates from his own life experiences and trust his ability

Monkey People aren't people who are stupid. Most Monkey People can't get motivated unless there is a personal gain or reward. They only recognize life experiences as either a curse or a blessing never as a challenge or as an adventure or something that they could learn from and maybe transcend their limited thinking and behavior. Unlikely unless they have the opportunity to be around people who see life as an adventure and an interesting if not an exciting experience and some characteristics could rub off on themselves and stick and learn something. Monkey people have limited or no interest in learning new things unless there is little or no effort needed or required. Sometimes you have to be a little bit curious before you can be drawn in and be interested.

Some people spend their whole life you might consider unbecoming or at odds with how I turned out . I would do this to counteract the statement said to Its better to bend the script to the Sidney Hipple puts together an event

It never hurts to be curious. Sometimes it leads

Most people tend to live in a vacuum like a little bubble in that vacuum they are restricted and safe from the outside world. By being uninvolved limited. If you can reach out and at least expand your vacuum and experience new people and new enviornments and get involved in life,alignment to who choose to experience your life with is of great importance. Sleep with dogs and you wake
